Transitioning Communities

An introductory exploration of a movement for change which is growing rapidly around the world. Transition Initiatives are a local community response to the challenges of peak oil and climate change. Their focus is on building community resilience by understanding the potential impacts of the challenges we face, enhancing our skills for self reliance, honouring the experience of community elders, celebrating achievement and nurturing connections.

SUGGESTED DONATION: $20/25

Over the course of the past fifteen years Pat has transitioned from teaching in secondary schools to presenting adult programs about the interdependence of all life on the planet and the need for sustainability. She works for the EarthSong Project. Pat is a member of local climate action groups, the community garden at the Flemington Neighbourhood House and the Inner NorthWest Transition group - MINTI. She loves growing food in her backyard.
